You'll find plenty of similarities between this game and the Minecraft series. This is probably due to the popularity of the latter game. Due to the huge amount of strength and attention Minecraft has gotten, many games are trying to copy or emulate the art style. In this way, it would give them a bit of a competitive advantage in gaining more attention. In this regard, the blocky style of visualization has become his own subgenm of the game. After all, there are more than enough Minecraft followers to fill the city. Although the main difference between this and Minecraft is perspective. Minecraft is from a first-person perspective, while Tower Craft 3D is from a bird's eye view. In addition, the graphics are of high quality and in HD. Yes, not only has the game taken on a popular art style, but the actual quality is sticking to as well. All in all, what we have is blocking the game with great graphics and graphics.
